

Kimball Studio Agreement

By booking the studio, you accept full responsibility for all equipment stored in the recording studio for the duration of time that you are in the space. If anything is broken, you are 100% liable to pay for it in full. If anything is broken, you must notify us immediately and we will do our best to cover costs however you are still liable to pay the full cost for repairs or replacement. If you notice any broken equipment when you walk in the room, you should tell us immediately so we don't assume that it was broken during your booking. Most of the equipment in the room does not belong to Kimball, it belongs to the Stanford Jazz Consortium, and you may be legally liable if you damage it. If you're unsure about how something works, let us know and we can show you how to use it without damaging it.

By reading this agreement and making a booking, you acknowledge the above and agree that you are fully responsible for the space and its equipment during your booking. You agree to the terms of use in the studio rules and etiquette document and by making a booking you agree to abide by those terms of use. You agree that you must sign in on the sheet posted in the studio on the wall. Failure to abide by any of these terms may result in legal action and you being banned from using Kimball's equipment and practice room.
